

Dear Student,

Following the transition to distance learning, the university has acquired an institutional license to use the AlmaReader text to speech software. This is in order to help all students of the university, including students with learning disabilities and handicaps, deal with the various difficulties that impact their reading and learning ability.

AlmaReader is a leader in its field and supports Hebrew, English and Arabic with a high level of accuracy in reading Word documents, PDF files and various web pages, while controlling the reading speed and voice type of the reader. The spoken text can be saved as an MP3 file that you can listen to at your convenience.

Every student has permission to use the software during the first semester, via a university email address.

There are a limited number of extended licenses that give users access to additional functions of the software, and these will be issued to students who refer to the Student Support Unit (with preference given to learning disabled students).

If you are interested in the extended license, please fill out your details at the following link: <https://forms.gle/VUnU2LcvjWKmBRVv6>

 There are a limited number of extended licenses left *****
